Cheatham's Employs A New Instructor

For a number of years there has come to Cheatham Conservatory frequent request for an instructor of the fretted stringed instruments, such as guitar, mandolin, banjo, musical saw and other instruments of this family.

Cheatham Conservatory is glad to announce that Mr. Pelham Ganus has been added to its faculty of able teachers to instruct in this department.

Mr. Ganus has studied music twenty seven years, part of which was with outstanding men like Jack Lenord, artist and famous stringed instrument teacher of Portland Ore. Also taken special teaching courses with the well known W. P. Ganus and the Ganus Conservatory of Music.

His nine years teaching stringed instruments 20 different states with his training qualifies him to do a most practical work. He is endeavoring to make his department a very active one.
